

Stanford
FOOD INSTITUTE
Residential & Dining Enterprises
CONFERENCE 11.4.2019

Dara Silverstein, MA

SUSTAINABLE FOOD PROGRAM MANAGER
R&DE STANFORD DINING

Dara Silverstein is R&DE Stanford Dining’s sustainable food program manager. She focuses on sustainable efforts in purchasing, the teaching gardens, operations (waste reduction, food donation, water and energy), and education. She is also a lecturer in earth systems and at the d.school at Stanford.

Prior to joining Stanford, she managed Harvard’s Food Literacy Project and worked at Harvard’s Office for Sustainability. Dara has her masters in urban and environmental policy and planning from Tufts University and a BA in anthropology from Harvard University. She is currently pursuing an EdD at Northeastern University in food education.